

Hooper Bay Subsistence ATV Trail Project Partnership (Alaska)

Damage caused by unmanaged all-terrain vehicle (ATV) use in Hooper Bay, Alaska, spurred members of the Yup'ik native Alaskan community to initiate the Hooper Bay Alaska Subsistence ATV Trail Project Partnership. The Partnership fostered the rebound of the black brant goose and greatly reduced damage to the landscape through innovative community education and outreach and the use of groundbreaking ATV trail-hardening technology.

Nominated by the National Park Service

National Park Service, Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance Program

Lisa Holzapfel

Kevin G. Meyer

Natural Resources Conservation Service

Ryan Maroney

Aimee Rohner

Sea Lion Corporation

Nuyaq W. Naneng

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Yukon Delta National Wildlife Refuge

Michael Rearden

Douglas Staller